President's Message

To all my quilting sisters: Thank you for teaching me the joy of quilting amongst friends!

The year is almost over and my presidency draws to a close. It has been my honor to serve the Guild for two years. I'm looking forward to quilting more and going to fewer meetings. The Board is budgeting for 2016 right now and you all know how much fun that is.

The Fall Retreat was fabulous! Twenty-one of us enjoyed our stay at the Ascension Center in Cove, Oregon. We had a record six new retreaters (!) who have hopefully had a great experience and will join in the upcoming fun. Highlights for me were strengthening friendships, great food, and knowing rural Oregon can be just as delightfully weird as the Portlanders. We saw a herd of deer, Nubian miniature goats, and a miniature horse pulling a homemade buggy. Most of us got further along on several projects and some even finished one or two. And no one will confess to how much fabric was purchased.

Spring Retreat is currently planned for April 20-24 in Soap Lake; but this is up to the next Retreat Chair. Members who would like to be chair please contact me for details. One person so far would like to chair the Spring Retreat, would someone like to chair the Fall Retreat?

The Annual Meeting Potluck will be held December 12th in the Desert View room, Bethel Church at 10:00 AM. The Guild has invited members to decorate a table of eight for old and new friends. We will have a short business meeting that include the installation of the new officers, voting on the 2016 budget, and any other required items. I hope your schedule permits you to attend. Anyone who is shy or new, call me or make it a point to sit at my decorated table.

Has everyone placed their fall quilts on the bed, table, and wall? It's that season. Keep sewing!

Elaine S. Brouillard
2015 TC Quilt Guild
President

Laurel Sutton Named 2016 MFA

A note from our 2016 Member Featured Artist:

How flattering to represent Tri-City Quilters' Guild as the member featured artist for 2016! But I can't let my ego grow too large -- it was a very close vote. So I will try to channel Ethel's familiarity with tradition and Jean's talent for interpretation as I plan my display.

My banner from this year's challenge will be my theme -- "Work Original: Steal, Distort, Mutilate." I want to gather the quilts I am most proud of -- that seem most ME -- and show how my composition process was a synthesis of elements from other sources. I want to honor the authors and designers, family and friends who have influenced and encouraged me. A section of photos will introduce you to my sewing buddies in Ohio and England and to the owners of my quilts.

It will be fun to gather my scattered creations and see them all hanging vertically (most of them were laid out on the floor) ... a great gift for my 70th birthday and my 60th anniversary as a sewist.

Thank you for the honor!

-- Laurel Sutton

Allied Arts To Feature TCQG in January Show

- Set up starts at 10:00 am and will continue until done.

Please fill out one form for all your items. Describe each one and list if it is for sale or not for sale (NFS) along with the price. Allied Arts will carry the insurance on each item, so you must list a price even if it is not for sale. The committee will create title cards for each piece on site and will be responsible for hanging and displaying the quilts.

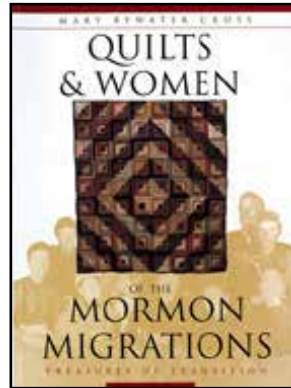

Please have your name, telephone number, and price (or NFS) on the back of each item.

The Gallery will handle the sale of your item and will retain a 30% commission, so price your work accordingly. The Gallery will issue you a check within 60 days. Please consider displaying your quilt. Bring your friends and your money to the reception on January 10th to admire the Guild's artist talent.

Bring questions to Barbara Minton at 509-392-1684 or 509-588-3392.

Quilts and History Subject of November Programs

Quilting's rich history, with emphasis on Western migration and settlement, will be the subject of November's AM and PM programs, to be presented by quilt historian, curator and artist, Mary Bywater Cross. Her work focuses on making woolen quilts and researching quilt history for public presentations.

Mary is the author of:

- "Quilts and Women of the Mormon Migrations: Treasures of Transition,"
- "Treasures in the Trunk: Quilts of the Oregon Trail"

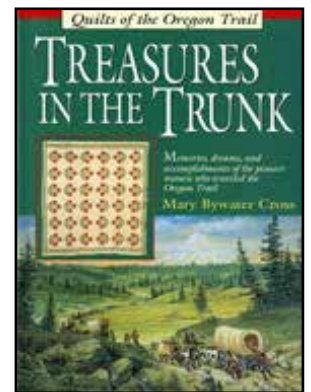

Mary is passionate about quilts as a valid document of human experience. She loves researching historic quilts, the link to the makers, and their life experience and community.

Mary will offer two different lectures during both November's AM and PM meetings, so make plans to spend the day with your fellow quilt enthusiasts:

AM Program: Treasures from the Trunk: Quilts of Migration

Placing each quilt in the context of time and place of when and where it was made and where it ended up after the migration provide key leads on the life of the maker or her family prior, during, or after migration experience.

PM Program: Patterns and Promoters: Three Early Quilt Entrepreneurs of the Colonial Revival 1890-1930

This lecture focuses on the background of the first quilt revival in the United States and describes the work of Marie Webster, Ruby Short McKim, and Carlie Sexton.

Quilt Show Chair Announces Special Exhibit

The special exhibit next April 1-2 at Quilts for All Seasons will be "Seasons in the Home" -- 4 vignettes to speak to summer, fall, winter, and spring in the home.

Will you enter? Round up a chair and an occasional table to illustrate how you create a cozy seasonal spot to indulge yourself and your fiber hobby/hobbies. Accessorize with quilted or handmade items plus: a glass of tea? A cup of coffee? A flower arrangement? Books and magazines that inspire you? A sample of your stitchery? A pillow or pad for your quality control animal?

Sign up with Rena for a season. Go solo or team with a friend or friends.

This exhibit will be sited front and center in the Great Hall, between the featured artists and near the harpist. The quadrants will be delineated with stanchions and velvet rope (which means, unfortunately, that you can't hang a quilt in your background. It should be in the show proper anyway, in the theme category...)

To register, click the Special Exhibit button; in the text/description area write your season and list your items. Rena's team will cook up a fluffy blurb/sign for the show. You will be responsible for set-up (wait until afternoon, when the framers will have finished) and take-down. But don't forget to formally check in (at the Collections desk) and check out.

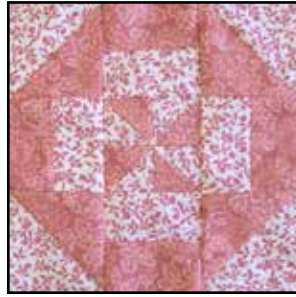

--Rena Christensen

COMMUNITY SERVICE BLOCK OF THE MONTH

November-December 2015

Surprise! Our prolific and very talented Community Service Block Chair, Kathy Kaser-Nichols, is taking a break for rest and renewal, so there is no official “block of the month” to be published in this issue of the Quilters’ Press.

Kathy has held her position since 2007--and during that time, has created over 100 Blocks of the Month for our Guild. We send our heartiest congratulations to Kathy--for her dedication and service--and all of us will appreciate the break during the busy holiday season.

Not you, you say? Not to worry: Kathy has a suggestion for anyone missing this issue’s assignment:

“Suggestion for those who want to make a community service block for Nov-Dec is this:

Make a card or post card or small item for the veterans at Walter Reed Army hospital. You can make a small quilted card, a fused one or whatever you have time and inclination for. The address they can be mailed to is this:

*American Serviceman or woman,
%Walter Reed Army Medical Center,
6900 Georgia Avenue NW,
Washington, DC 20307-5001*

If you want, take a picture of it and post it on the guild’s Facebook page.

Thank you, Kathy Kaser-Nichols”

The TCQG is grateful to Hillspring Church, which provides space for our monthly meetings. Please remember to close the doors to the meeting room after the AM meeting! At an earlier meeting, doors were opened all afternoon.

Annual Meeting Ahead!

- You're Invited: December AM and PM meetings combine in annual/general meeting
- When: Saturday December 12 from 10:00 - 1:00 (set-up at 9:00)
- Where: Desert View Room at Bethel Church, 600 Shockley Rd, Richland

Before she presides over the annual meeting of the Tri-City Quilters' Guild, Elaine Brouillard will be the hostess for our traditional holiday potluck

She envisions an English-style celebration of the seasonal holly and ivy. "I invite individual members to sponsor a table for eight: bring a decoration and table ware (paper, plastic, or the real deal -- china and silver and linen!). Gather up 7 friends ahead of time, or make 7 new friends at the event."

If you are interested in setting a table, contact Elaine.

Otherwise, just bring a dish for the brunch buffet. There will be lots to see and do: show and tell, raffle quilt tickets, show pins, community service kits and fun and fellowship with fellow quilters.

As usual, the agenda for the business meeting will include meeting the new 2016 Board members, year-end reports from committee chairs and approval of the budget for 2016.

White Bluffs Makes Changes

Until now, the White Bluffs Quilt Museum has housed its dual mission of preservation and education under the same small roof. As of December, the functions will split. The museum/gallery/marketplace functions will continue to occupy the space at 294 Torbett, Richland. Classrooms, the Quilt Index Project, and archives will move to an adjacent suite. This move will essentially double the museum space.

The Museum expects this expansion in size to increase the number of visitors to the Museum. Currently over 30,000 visitors tour the museum annually. The size and significance of Museum exhibits will reflect this additional space. "We also expect an increase in the number of educational classes offered, and the size of those classes", said Jean Zoet, president of the White Bluffs Board of Directors. The additional space will provide three separate classrooms that can be reserved and rented for arts or crafts classes or other meetings. The rooms range in size, with the largest being 22 X 35, and will include tables, chairs and other classroom essentials.

White Bluffs encourages artists, teachers, and store owners to come and explore the possibilities of using this new space. If you are looking for a studio, a space to work on a project, and class to take, we may be what you are looking for. White Bluffs Quilt Museum, 294 Torbett, Richland.
